The Gingerbread House Champion Baker

After dusting the next trophy, Mrs Right calls out, "Gingerbread House Champion Baker, Leftsville County, Year 2001" before moving on to the next one on its right, and then the next one... until she finally reaches the 20th trophy, which Mrs Right has only just added to the collection last week. Mrs Right then takes a few steps back to admire them from a distance before proudly announcing one final time, "Mrs Barbara Right, Leftsville County's Gingerbread House Champion Baker, 2000 to 2019" to no one in particular, before carrying on with the rest of the chores in the house.

Meanwhile, Mrs Right is already quietly planning her Gingerbread House creation for next year's Leftsville County's Gingerbread House baking championship...

"Ariel, do you see the trophy on the extreme left?" Mrs Right never tires of asking little Ariel the same question every time she comes to visit.

Ariel is Mrs Right's only grandchild, who comes to stay with her every year during the Christmas season. Even though Ariel is only 7 years old, she has heard the stories about every single one of these 20 trophies, from the one on the extreme left to the one on the extreme right, so many times that she can re-tell them almost word for word.

It’s a silly little game that Ariel plays with Mrs Right every afternoon while enjoying all the tasty cakes, cookies and gingerbread that Mrs Right bakes every morning. These treats are so yummy, there are never any left by mid-day. But cheeky Ariel knows exactly the right words to say to encourage Mrs Right to bake yet another batch of the most delicious treats the next morning.

Mr James Right, Ariel’s father, is not blind to the fact that Ariel puts on at least a good 5 pounds every time she stays with Mrs Right at Leftsville. But it is a small price he is willing to pay. After all it is a good bonding time for Mrs Right and Ariel, while he and his wife sneak away for their annual romantic vacation before returning to Leftsville on Christmas Eve.

With Ariel’s companionship and constant encouragement, Mrs Right never fails to cook the most delightful Christmas feast of roast turkey, ham and plum pudding, not to mention the most magnificent and tasty gingerbread house! If you have the chance to sample Mrs Right’s cooking, I dare say you will surely agree that Mrs Right is not only Leftsville County’s Gingerbread House Champion Baker, but she is also the best chef in the whole wide world!

The End.
